Crop of the creams

WE love the Henri Bendel's beauty department, a collection of the best lotions and potions from around the world. This week, the store launched a few more products we adore.

Head to the Fifth Avenue boutique and test: Diana B Green Tea Desert Grapefruit bath gel ($30), a sumptuous line that uses maple syrup instead of oil; Ellie by Ellie D ($225), a light floral fragrance created in Grasse, France;

Sekkisei Mask White ($28), a charcoal-black face mask from Japan; and Lisa Simon Monsoon Season ($103), an Indian-inspired perfume.

And check back. Within the next few months, the department store will stock L'Artisan Parfumeur's Jatamansi, a luxurious body lotion made from Himalayan flowers, and offbeat scents like "Jasmine and Cigarettes" from French boutique Etat Libre D'Orange.
